

Shop to Stop Violence

The proceeds from the thrift shops are one means to financially support the vital work done by domestic violence and sexual assault agencies in our state.

Another great way to support these agencies is to make a donation of your gently used household items for the thrift store to sell. Please contact a shop closest to you for details.

As always, financial contributions over and above your purchase or donation are welcomed.

These shops do more than offer a bargain or two!

The proceeds from the thrift stores aid the agencies in providing resources that are invaluable to our communities.

These agencies shelter, educate, counsel, and advocate for women and men impacted by violent relationships.

For more information on domestic violence and sexual assault agencies in WNC and throughout the state, visit the programs tab on the NC Council for Women website!

This brochure was provided by the NC Council for Women/Domestic Violence Commission.

The N.C. Council for Women's mission is to advise the Governor, the North Carolina legislature and state departments on the issues impacting women in North Carolina by:

- Raising awareness of the impact of violence against women and directing available resources to serve victims in communities across the State.
- Collecting and distributing information about the status of women in North Carolina.
- Acting as a resource for local and regional Councils and Commissions for Women.
- Assuring that necessary services, policies and programs are provided to those in need and strengthening existing programs.

Whether it is called the “Crazy Daisy” in Yancey County, the “Second Chance” in Polk County or “REACH for Bargains” in Macon County, Western North Carolina has “thrift” stores galore. Boutique, up-scale labels to traditional thrift shop wares like furniture, clothing and kitchen items, there is something for every taste and style.

These shops do more than offer a bargain or two!

Many shops even offer special events around their wares including fashion shows (Polk County) and a tour of a home decorated entirely from donated items (Transylvania County). Some offer handmade items from individuals in the community.
